KEITH BEATY/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Oh Baby, that's quite the design

Baby Steinberg took the concept of eco-friendly clothing to another level Thursday at LG Fashion Week, unearthing materials typically bound for the dump and turning them into avant-garde designs. With her latest collection, dubbed Salvage, the Brazilian-born, Toronto-based designer stayed true to the mantra of "reclaim, repurpose, refresh." From used coffee filters to wine corks and bubble gum, she took everyday household items that often linger around the house or even make it as far as the bin and attempted to transform them into cutting-edge designs.

Scramble isn't very Zen-like

Dalai Lama arrives in Toronto on Friday ◐ During three-day visit, will give speech at Rogers Centre, with 30,000 expected ◐ Will also visit new cultural centre

AL BEHRMAN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ The Dalai Lama

Volunteers are busily preparing to welcome the Dalai Lama to Toronto, working to transform a former factory into a grandiose cultural centre and promising culinary delights from Oprah's chef for the modest Tibetan leader.

"He's such a simple person," said Kevin Fitzsimons, a designer — and also a Buddhist — who, despite the Dalai Lama's austerity, has been "scrambling" to turn the Tibetan Canadian Cultural Centre into an area worthy of a visit from the exiled leader.

"His tastes are very, very simple."

For many Tibetans in the city, excitement is brewing over the Dalai Lama's visit to the cultural centre, a 4,600-square-metre building which will eventually become the cultural hub for the community.

"No, it's nowhere even close (to finished)," laughed Fitzsimons, who said the original plan was to have the old lighting factory 80 per cent complete by the time the spiritual leader arrived.

The project faced a hiccup four months ago, when workers found lead in the walls and had to fix the problem. It's now expected to be completed by March 2011.

"The sense here is rush," Fitzsimons said days ahead of the Dalai Lama's visit. "The sense here is to make everything as perfect as we can."

The building, when complete, will have a regulation-sized basketball court, a prayer hall, a banquet space and a second floor exclusively for the Dalai Lama's use.

TTC info screens warn of delays

It will be end of 2011 before screens are visible at every subway entrance

The TTC is rolling out new screens at its station entrances to provide riders with information about subway, bus and streetcar delays before they decide to drop tokens into the slot.

The first of the new screens, provided at no cost by Onestop Media, was unveiled at the entrance to the Dundas West subway station Thursday.

The information will be dispatched directly from the TTC's transit-control centre and the screens will be positioned so they're fully visible to the subway collectors.

When there's a major service disruption, similar to one that shut down the Yonge line last fall during rush hour, the new screens will have a full-screen override alerting passengers that they should find an alternative.

"The frustrating thing for our passengers may be that we've always had this information," said TTC chair Adam Giambrone. Now, at last, riders will have it as well.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

New services

- The new screens, which provide the status of all surface and subway service running through the station, are the latest addition to the TTC's customer information services. Others include Google trip planning, email alerts, platform information screens and text messages that tell riders when the next streetcar will arrive at their stop.
- Cellphone service on the subway is coming, too, Giambrone said, but probably won't be widely available for about four years.

Critics urge clean sweep of Catholic board

They cost taxpayers $1.3 million instead of the allowed $400,000.

They knowingly voted themselves illegal health and dental benefits.

When a forensic auditor was called in, one owed a whopping $13,500 in questionable expenses, which he had to repay. A judge forced two off the board over conflicts of interest.

But will the sins of Toronto Catholic school board trustees be forgiven — or forgotten — at election time?

A number of parents and Catholic educators hope not. With eight trustees running for re-election, they are calling on voters not to re-elect any. Even Toronto's archbishop has issued a plea to Catholics to vote for candidates with integrity.

"If I was a Catholic voter, I'd throw them all out."
BRUCE DAVIS, POLITICAL STRATEGIST

"I think this last batch of Catholic trustees has done harm not just to Catholic education, but all public education," said Bruce Davis, who chairs the Toronto public board and is a longtime political strategist.

But incumbents have the advantage of name recognition and, added Davis, "as soon as there are more than two or three (opposing candidates), the incumbent is virtually guaranteed getting in."

Catholic Trustee John Del Grande — the only trustee to raise concerns about the health benefits — said no one is "beyond reproach" but it's unfair to taint the entire group.

"If you get a whole bunch of rookies, the learning curve is great and staff ... aren't held as accountable," he said.

$4.25M awarded to wrongfully convicted man

William Mullins-Johnson one of several people once convicted on testimony of now-disgraced pathologist

A man who was wrongly convicted of killing his niece based in part on evidence from disgraced pathologist Dr. Charles Smith will receive $4.25 million in compensation, the Ontario government announced Thursday.

William Mullins-Johnson spent 12 years in prison after being found guilty in 1994 of raping and murdering the four-year-old girl in his hometown of Sault Ste. Marie.

Several experts later found no evidence to support Smith's conclusion that the girl had been sodomized and asphyxiated.

In fact, they concluded she died of natural causes.

"We're very sorry on behalf of the government of Ontario and the people of Ontario for the terrible pain and suffering that Mr. Mullins-Johnson has undergone," said Ontario Attorney General Chris Bentley.

"There's no amount of money that will ever make up for, or take away from, the pain and hurt over the years." Mullins-Johnson, 40, was one of several people who were wrongly accused of killing children based on flawed evidence from Smith, a pediatric forensic pathologist once considered the dean of his profession.

Mullins-Johnson was acquitted by the Ontario Court of Appeal in 2007.

Lawyer David Robins, who represents Mullins-Johnson, said Thursday his client is pleased the case is finally coming to an end.

"No amount of money is going to fully compensate Mr. Mullins-Johnson for the hardship that he's endured, 12 years in prison and being labelled a sex offender, and that's horrible and truly unfortunate," said Robins.

Background

- In 2005, an Ontario chief coroner ordered another look at 44 autopsies that had been conducted by Dr. Charles Smith at the Hospital for Sick Children, 13 of which had resulted in criminal charges and convictions. Two years later, a report pointed to major problems with 20 of those autopsies.

Chicken flap Double jeopardy for Liberals?

The KFC Double Down sandwich is becoming the political hot potato of the week at the Ontario legislature.

The 540-calorie Double Down — a bun-less concoction featuring bacon, cheese and sauce sandwiched between two slabs of fried chicken — went on sale in Canada Monday.

Almost immediately, Ontario's health promotion minister caused a stir when she said the province may review the sale of the Double Down, a position she quickly reversed.

On Wednesday, three Conservative members of the legislature stood outside the chamber sharing a Double Down to highlight what they say is McGuinty's obsession with managing people's lives. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Smitherman, Ford still neck-and-neck in polls

- Nearly half say Ford would bring greatest change
- But 42% say Smitherman would make better mayor

Rob Ford and George Smitherman continue to hold each other in a political headlock, tied in Toronto's mayoral race with Joe Pantalone a very distant third, says a poll conducted last weekend.

The Leger Marketing Poll of 600 Torontonians conducted Friday to Monday for the Toronto Sun also found a majority think Ford would bring the most change to City Hall, but Smitherman would be the best mayor.

The telephone poll found that Smitherman, the former deputy premier, had the support of 31 per cent, the thrifty Etobicoke councillor Ford had 30 per cent and Pantalone, the deputy mayor promising a continuation of Mayor David Miller's legacy with some "shaping and pruning," at 10 per cent — his lowest showing in recent polls.

18%
Some 18 per cent of poll respondents were undecided, down slightly from other polls released in the past week.

Asked who would make the best mayor, respondents gave Smitherman the edge, with 42 per cent compared to Ford's 36 per cent.

When asked who would bring the most change to City Hall if elected, 47 per cent picked Ford, who has promised to run the city like a business, with deep cuts in spending but no service cuts.

Twenty-three per cent said Smitherman, who is promising a curb on city spending by returning to core services but also a host of city-building initiatives.

Only eight per cent expect big change from Pantalone.

The poll's margin of error is plus or minus four per cent, 19 times out of 20.

Pantalone unveils 'complete' transit plan

With four days to go until voters will choose the city's next mayor, Joe Pantalone has released a "complete" transit plan.

"I don't believe it's late," he said. "I think this is very appropriate as people are still making up their minds."

Standing alongside the controversial Jarvis Street bike lane Thursday, Pantalone promised to build 1,000 kilometres of cycle routes by 2012, add European-style separated bike lanes along University Avenue and Richmond Street, as well as add a second general manager to the TTC.

CARLOS OSORIO/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Asked to explain key differences between his plan and the one the city is currently plugging away at, Pantalone said: "I will implement it... I'm an implementer." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Travelling Pants

Pantalone's list of transit priorities include:

- Convert some street parking to create 50 "bicycle parking corrals," each providing space for about 20 bikes, and create bike parking in "Green P" lots. The plan doesn't reveal how many car spots would disappear, or where.
- Install physically separated bike lanes, starting with University Avenue and Richmond Street and expanding to other "appropriate avenues". A controversial pilot project to put two separated lanes on University Avenue in the summer was scuttled when a Pantalone ally misvoted.
- Complete the 2001 bike plan's promised 1,000-kilometre network of bikeways by 2012 — an ambitious goal that would involve considerable acceleration of lane and off-road path installation.
- Expand the boundaries of the BIXI bike-sharing network, set to hit streets next spring.
- Create a "public education campaign for all road users to raise public awareness about our individual responsibility for road sharing."
- Within the TTC, create a special unit responsible for construction projects.
- Open up "food vending options" in subway stations. (There is no detail about how.)

Candidates like green — until they lose green

Of campaign funds for politicians elected in the 905, 43 per cent came from development industry: York prof

A broad survey by Environmental Defence of candidates competing in the fast-growing edge cities around Toronto shows wide support for progressive initiatives such as expanding and strengthening the Greenbelt.

But the data on nine issues assembled by the environmental group also reveals a major difference between incumbents and their rivals: While 54 per cent of the GTA and Simcoe County challengers responded, only 45 per cent of incumbents did.

Candidates who did respond showed strong support for green initiatives — almost 95 per cent supported building up the Greenbelt, for example.

"We've done the number-crunching, and land speculators provide the vast majority of money sloshing around in local municipal elections."
RICK SMITH, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, ENVIRONMENTAL DEFENCE

But overall support plummeted to just 66 per cent on the question of election finance reform. Who donates to election campaigns becomes an environmental question when much of the money comes from people who have a stake in environmental decisions, such as developers.

It's perhaps revealing that the lowest rate of response to the survey came from high-growth municipalities such as Vaughan, Halton Hills, Brampton and Milton, where development is "leapfrogging" the protected Greenbelt.

Rick Smith, executive director of Environmental Defence, said he was encouraged that the survey showed there is "support for green initiatives and actions that will benefit the quality of life," such as intensified building and transit. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Williams handed two life sentences

Crown didn't seek dangerous offender status, saying it was 'superfluous' given killer's punishment and would only prolong the suffering of families

Consequences

- Det. Insp. Chris Nicholas said Russell Williams is likely headed for solitary confinement at Kingston Penitentiary, which also houses Paul Bernardo.
- The military wasted no time in declaring Williams will be removed from the Canadian Forces. The prime minister said the Forces will also do what it can to strip benefits from Williams.

For more coverage of the Russell Williams case, scan the above code.

The unprecedented, sadistic crimes of convicted sex killer Col. Russell Williams have earned him a place among the worst criminals Canada has ever seen, court heard Thursday as the final chapter in the shocking case drew to a close.

"The depths of the depravity demonstrated by Russell Williams had no equal," Ontario Superior Court Justice Robert Scott said as he sentenced the once-decorated officer to two concurrent life sentences with no possibility of parole for 25 years.

"One suspects that he has contained for most of his adult life sexual desires and fetishes ... Russell Williams will forever be remembered as a sadosexual serial killer."

Williams' dark descent began with a string of disturbing fetish break-ins in 2007 that escalated to sexual assaults and culminated in the brutal sex killings of Cpl. Marie-France Comeau, 37, and Jessica Lloyd, 27.

WILLIAMS' COURT STATEMENT

Before he was sent to the Kingston Penitentiary, Col. Russell Williams delivered a statement in court. Here is an edited transcript:

I stand before you, your honour, indescribably ashamed. I know that the crimes I've committed have traumatized many people. The families and friends of Marie-France Comeau and Jessica Lloyd, in particular, have suffered and continue to suffer profound desperate pain and sorrow.

I shall spend the rest of my life regretting, above all, that I've ended two vibrant, innocent and cherished lives.

My very sincere hope is that my detailed confession on the night of Feb. 7 ... and ultimately my guilty pleas earlier this week have, in some way, served to temper the very serious harm I caused my victims, and their families and friends.

Arctic heating up: Scientists

CLIMATE. The temperature is rising again in the Arctic, with the sea ice extent dropping to one of the lowest levels on record, climate scientists reported Thursday.

The new Arctic Report Card "tells a story of widespread, continued and even dramatic effects of a warming Arctic," said Jackie Richter-Menge of the Cold Regions Research and Engineering Laboratory, a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers facility.

Atmospheric scientists concerned about global warming focus on the Arctic because that is a region where the effects are expected to be felt first. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec eyes energy deposit

POWER. Quebec's natural resources minister says she will present a plan to the federal government this fall that would give the province exclusive rights to a disputed underwater energy deposit.

Nathalie Normandeau wants to ensure the province reaps revenues from Old Harry, a reservoir rich in fossil fuels near the Newfoundland and Labrador border.

The Gulf of St. Lawrence site has been at the centre of a feud between the two provinces for years. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Feds crack down on human smuggling

Tories vowed to get tough on human smuggling after almost 500 Tamil migrants docked in B.C. in August

DARRYL DYCK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Minister of Public Safety Vic Toews walks off the Tamil migrant vessel Ocean Lady Thursday after announcing proposed harsher penalties for human smuggling.

The federal government has moved to crack down on human smuggling and what it calls abuse of the immigration system with a tough package of measures it's calling fair but the opposition labels dangerous.

The complex bill tabled Thursday increases penalties for those caught supporting human smuggling, and extends penalties to people who had any contact with such operations, including the owners and operators of ships used to bring people in.

"This is a broad and wide-ranging approach to combatting human smuggling containing measures to firmly and decisively deal with those who consider testing Canada's resolve on this matter," said Public Safety Minister Vic Toews, who called human smuggling "a despicable crime that recklessly endangers human lives" and said the new rules are a necessity. "Are these measure tough? Yes, undoubtedly, because in order to make human smugglers and fraudsters think twice, they have to be.

"But they are also fair," he added, "fair to those who legitimately and legally wait or have waited in line for a better life in Canada, and fair for all Canadians." THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Irregular'

- In an attempt to stop ships smuggling people from landing on Canada's shores, the bill also empowers the public safety minister to decide whether a migrant's arrival in Canada is deemed "irregular" and subject to harsher treatment.
- Those "irregular" asylum-seekers would be put on a five-year probation, forbidding them from leaving Canada or applying to sponsor their families to come to Canada. The bill would also allow detention of these asylum-seekers for up to a year.
- "This is going to give the minister absolute power, above the courts," said NDP public safety critic Don Davies.

New Program Now Available That Can Help Renters Buy A Home With As Little As $5,000 Down & $1,500/Month.

Toronto, ON - The Canadian H.O.M.E. Program (CHP) has just announced that they are now taking applications for their all new Lease To Own Program.

If you are currently renting, but don't have enough of a down payment , or have some issues with your credit score, or are new to Canada, this may be your chance to own your home, even if you have already been turned down by the banks.

The new programs offers renters a simple way to move in to their own home in as little as 45 days.

The first step is a simple application form that helps you figure out what price home, and the exact area that fits your needs.

Once you know the price range and area, you can actually choose from any homes listed on MLS in your area.

The home is then purchased, including a full home inspection, to make sure there are no major defects, and that's it. You move in to your new home right away.

There is no fee to apply, and no fee to buy your home through the program, but you do have to qualify, and there are limited openings in every area due to the incredible demand.

To see if you qualify, call the CHP Infoline at 416.366.9090 or go to their website at CanadianHomeProgram.com Call or go online NOW.

▶ Student protests turn ugly, as France cuts short retirement debate with vote to go ahead.

Street battles fire up France

◗ Travellers warned to check with airlines as strikes, protests escalate ◗ Lady Gaga forced to cancel concerts

Police used tear gas and water cannons against rampaging youth in Lyon yesterday while the French government showed its muscle in parliament, short-circuiting tense Senate debate on a bill raising the retirement age to 62.

Despite growing pressure, President Nicolas Sarkozy held firm on a measure he says is crucial to the future of France, heightening the standoff with labour unions that see retirement at 60 as a hard-earned right.

Weeks of protests have left at least a quarter of the nation's gas stations on empty, blocked hundreds of ships at Marseille and even forced Lady Gaga to cancel Paris concerts.

Violence on the margins of some student protests have added a new dimension. But a Paris march by at least 4,000 students was peaceful. "It is not trouble-makers who will have the last word in a democracy," Sarkozy said, promising to find and punish rioters. He accused strikers of "taking the economy, businesses, daily life hostage."

Development projects stalled by Taliban fear

- Local leaders won't back building of schools, clinics
- Afghan govt. won't build clinics without elder consent

The Canadian military and its coalition allies are trying to affect sweeping changes in the local leadership of the Panjwaii district of Kandahar, where weak government structures have been frustrating efforts to quell the insurgency.

In villages throughout the district, attempts to build schools and medical clinics have stalled due to a lack of support from village elders who say they are intimidated by the Taliban.

The problem is compounded by a controversial district governor, who has effectively been stranded by the Afghan government in Kabul, senior NATO officials say.

They have given strong indications that Haji Baran, who enjoys the support of the Canadian military, could be replaced in the coming months.

"We're always looking to refresh leadership to get the right people in place," Maj. Gen. Nick Carter, who heads NATO troops in southern Afghanistan, said recently.

Baran, an illiterate former mujahedeen, is the lone full-time staff member of the district government. NATO officials acknowledge he has a difficult job, with precious few resources to do it.

Unlike other areas in Kandahar, tribal leadership in Panjwaii is heavily fragmented and there a few obvious leaders capable of rallying the disparate groups in the district.

Baran is a Noorzai, a tribe that has been associated with the Taliban. But the district's business elites tend to be Alkozai.

And even though the majority of Panjwaii's population is Noorzai, there are dozens of sub-tribes.

"It is very difficult to put your finger on the Noorzai leader who can represent the interests of all of Panjwaii," said Richard Berthon, NATO's head.

"I don't think such a person exists."

Fake gun gets cops' attention

Police in Barrie, Ont., have given a caution to a boy who shot a seven-year-old girl in the leg with a fake gun.

Officers initially thought the 12-year-old boy had a BB gun in Chalmers Drive Park on Wednesday night.

The girl was not seriously hurt. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Feds agree to cover tab for new drug law

Legislation would send traffickers, producers to jail immediately

ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Correctional Services Canada Commissioner Don Head waits to appear before the Senate Justice Committee on Parliament Hill in Ottawa, Thursday.

Correctional Services Canada says it has no idea what mandatory minimum sentences for drug crimes will do to the prison system.

But Commissioner Don Head told a Senate committee the government has agreed to cover off the costs of implementing the new bill.

Bill S-10 is the third time the Conservatives have tried to get a law in place that would see traffickers and producers sent immediately to prison, even those convicted of growing only six marijuana plants.

But Head told the Senate committee studying the bill there isn't enough information to figure out whether the bill would have a deterrent effect or merely swell prison populations.

Part of the new bill will also impose mandatory minimums for those caught trying to sell drugs behind bars.

Budget deficit may be hard to get rid of: Report

Budget watchdog says shrinking labour force, global economy and interest rates will work against the Tories

Canada's budget watchdog says the current budget deficit may be relatively smaller than what Ottawa faced in the 1990s, but it's going to be harder to eliminate.

And it could require tax increases in order to achieve according to Ottawa's five-year plan, despite the Conservatives' assurances they don't plan to do that.

Parliamentary Budget Officer Kevin Page says in a new report issued yesterday that many of the conditions that helped the Liberals return to balance in the mid-1990s are not present today.

While the Jean Chrétien government faced a much deeper fiscal hole than the Harper government does now, after adjusting for inflation and economic growth, it was able to eliminate the deficit in fairly short order.

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Kevin Page

That's because unlike today, Canada's labour force was growing, the global economy was expanding, and the Canadian dollar, as well as interest rates were falling.

The situation is completely reversed on all fronts today, the Page report says.

The Parliamentary Budget Officer has a mandate to provide independent analysis and comment on the federal finances but doesn't have any involvement in setting government policy or administration.

Chavez 'on offensive'

Strengthening ties with Syria 'to accelerate the fall of (U.S.) imperialist hegemony' Venezuela and Syria sign several economic agreements

On the Mideast leg of an international tour, Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez said yesterday that he and his Syrian counterpart are "on the offensive" against Western imperialism.

The trip underscores the forces that complicate Washington's battle for influence in Syria, which is under U.S. sanctions because the State Department considers it a sponsor of terrorism.

Despite U.S. outreach, Syria has remained close to Iran and the militant groups Hamas and Hezbollah, while building ties with Venezuela.

Still, Syria stands to gain from improved ties with Washington, which could boost the country's struggling economy and end the sanctions

That's one big puddle

When NASA blasted a hole in the moon last year in search of water, scientists figured there would be a splash. They just didn't know how big.

Now new results from the Hollywood-esque moonshot reveal lots of water in a crater where the sun never shines — 41 gallons of ice and vapour.

That may not sound like much — it's what a typical washing machine uses for a load — but it's almost twice as much as researchers had initially measured and more than they ever expected to find.

The estimate represents only what scientists can see from the debris plume that was kicked up from the high-speed crash near the south pole by a NASA spacecraft on Oct. 9, 2009.

Proof that the moon is not a dry, desolate world offers hope for a possible future astronaut outpost where water on site could be used for drinking or making rocket fuel. But the scientists' excitement is tempered by the reality that there's no plan to land on the moon anytime soon.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

1,500 Mission chief scientist Anthony Colaprete of the Nasa Ames Research Center calculated there could be one billion gallons of water in the crater that was hit — enough to fill 1,500 Olympic-sized swimming pools.

U.S. appeals court freezes judge's order halting the military's policy

A U.S. federal appeals court has frozen a judge's order halting the military's "don't ask, don't tell" policy — even as the Pentagon has announced it will accept openly gay recruits.

A three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals temporarily granted the U.S. government's request for a freeze on the judge's order.

The appellate court instructed lawyers for the gay rights group that brought the lawsuit successfully challenging the policy to file arguments in response by Monday.

The judges would then decide whether to extend the stay while it considers the government's appeal of U.S. District Judge Virginia Phillips' ruling that the policy was unconstitutional.

A lawyer for the Log Cabin Republicans called it a minor setback.

Secret service

The 1993 "don't ask, don't tell" rule says gays may serve but only if they keep secret their sexual orientation.

▶ The government argues that striking down the policy and ordering the Pentagon to immediately allow openly gay service members could harm troop morale and unit cohesion.

Punching at unrest

Malaysia's prime minister, Najib Razak, set out to curb rifts between the Malay majority and ethnic minorities Thursday, saying the country could end up in tatters like Bosnia or Rwanda if races quarrel over economic rights. Najib assured his main Malay constituency they would continue to be assisted, but he also acknowledged contributions made by the Chinese and Indian minorities. Minorities have complained they endure discrimination.

Mounties get their men: 2 new chiefs

The beleaguered RCMP is shaking up its management with the appointment of two veteran officers to oversee operations in eastern and western Canada.

It was not immediately clear if any Mounties lost their jobs in the long-expected shuffle.

Gary Bass becomes Deputy Commissioner West, based in Vancouver, and Steve Graham will assume responsibilities as Deputy Commissioner East in Halifax.

Commissioner William Elliott, stung by a revolt by some senior members, says the changes follow broad consultations that began last spring with provincial and territorial contract partners.

Elliott also appointed some new provincial commanding officers:

▶ Assistant Commissioner Dale McGowan becomes commanding officer in Alberta.

▶ Chief Supt. Russell Mirasty is chief in Saskatchewan.

▶ Chief Supt. Alphonse MacNeil takes over in Halifax.

A number of senior Mounties have complained to the government that Elliott is an abrasive bully who alienates staff.

Top court orders Russia: Allow gays to march

Moscow mayor had compared homosexuals to the devil, banned pride processions $41,300 penalty set

The European Court of Human Rights condemned Russia on Thursday for allowing Moscow to ban gay pride marches.

The ban was instituted simply because the city's then-mayor — who famously compared gays to the devil — and other officials disapproved of them.

The binding ruling means Russia must ensure gay parades are freely held in its cities.

It also requires the country to pay organizers of gay pride events $41,300 for damages and court costs stemming from bans from 2006 to 2008.

The court is an arm of the Council of Europe, the continent's premier human rights watchdog and Russia is a member.

"There is no scientific evidence that the mere mention of homosexuality, or open debate about sexual minorities' social status, would adversely affect children or 'vulnerable adults.'"
EUROPEAN COURT OF HUMAN RIGHTS

The case was launched by Nikolay Alekseyev, an organizer of several Moscow marches, to highlight discrimination against gays and lesbians.

Moscow's mayor at the time, Yuri Luzhkov, ensured that gay pride parades, which never got official permission to go ahead, were brutally quashed by police.

The European Court of Human Rights said those marches were formally banned "to protect public order, health, morals and the rights and freedoms of others, as well as to prevent riots."

But the real reason, the court said, was a dislike of gays and lesbians.

Jealous lover gets 30 years for parachute death

Woman found guilty of murder for sabotaging the parachute of a woman who shared the same lover as her

A jealous schoolteacher who doctored the parachute of a love rival causing her to plunge to her death was sentenced to 30 years in prison Thursday.

In sentencing Els Clottemans, 26, the judge said the only mitigating circumstance in the 2006 skydive murder was her feeble psychological condition. Clottemans attempted suicide in 2008.

She was sentenced in Brussels, Belgium a day after she was found guilty of murdering Els Van Doren by sabotaging her parachute so neither it nor a safety chute would open during a Nov. 18, 2006, jump.

GEERT VANDEN WIJNGAERT/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Els Clottemans

A jury at a courthouse in the East Belgian town of Tongeren agreed with the prosecution that jealousy motivated Clottemans.

She and Van Doren were members of the same parachute club. The killer and her victim were intimately involved with the same man, a Dutch skydiver, whom Clottemans wanted for herself.

The jury saw video footage from a camera mounted on her helmet, that Van Doren had shot during what would be her last jump.

She and Clottemans were among the last four jumpers to leave the Cessna plane.

The video showed how the victim looked up, yanking at her gear, hoping to see an open canopy above her.

Neither parachute opened and she crashed into a garden in the East Belgian town of Opglabbeek and died instantly.

PM dismisses icy relationship

While announcing a long-awaited upgrade to a military complex, Harper said he supports Premier Danny Williams

Prime Minister Stephen Harper appears to be welcoming a recent thaw in his past icy relationship with Newfoundland and Labrador Premier Danny Williams.

Harper was in St. John's Thursday to announce the start of an upgrade project at a military complex in the city.

At the end of the announcement, a reporter asked Harper how he would describe the "climate" of his relationship with the Tory premier.

Chuckling, Harper said he never thought of it in terms of "climactic analogies" but added that Williams is a competent Conservative leader that as a fellow Tory he could support.

Relations between the two leaders have been marked by high-profile spats in the past.

During the 2008 federal election, Williams led a campaign that ousted Conservatives from the province.

Rats too 'gentle' for traps?

An Ottawa animal rights group says rats are "gentle, social animals," and it wants rat traps removed from Confederation Park.

The Ottawa Animal Defence League was to hold a protest to demand the National Capital Commission remove the traps.

The commission set up eight poison-filled rat traps last week to deal with a rat infestation in the downtown park.

The animal rights group says squirrels, birds and family pets could end up being poisoned.

Pipeline puts Clinton in the line of fire

She's urged to clarify her stance on TransCanada's Keystone XL ◐ Opposition increased after Gulf oil spill

Senators from both U.S. parties urged Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton on Thursday to clarify remarks she made that signalled likely U.S. support for a $7 billion pipeline to carry Canadian oil to refineries along the U.S. Gulf Coast.

Sens. Mike Johanns and Ben Nelson of Nebraska and Jeff Merkley of Oregon called Clinton's comments premature and damaging to the integrity of the federal review process.

The lawmakers cautioned Clinton to consider all sides before deciding whether to grant a permit to allow TransCanada's Keystone XL pipeline to cross the U.S-Canadian border.

"We're either going to be dependent on dirty oil from the Gulf or dirty oil from Canada," Clinton has said in San Francisco.

For and against

- Opponents call the massive Keystone XL pipeline an ecological disaster waiting to happen.
- Supporters call it a boon for jobs and energy production.
- It's projected to move 1.1 million barrels of Canadian oil each day to U.S. refineries.

U.S. POLITICS

So, just what exactly is the Tea Party?

Despite its name, the Tea Party isn't really a party.

"It's a racially decentralized organization," said Karlyn Bowman of the American Enterprise Institute.

"It's the most unusual movement we've seen in the U.S. in a long time."

Today, cities and states across the United States have independent Tea Party organizations.

The Tea Party's decentralized structure continues to frustrate both Republicans and Democrats, because there's no party leader to negotiate with.

The Tea Party emerged last year, with a series of protests against large government spending bills.

The name is a reference to the famous 1773 Boston Tea Party, when colonists dumped British tea in the harbour to protest paying taxes to the British government.

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

Two years ago, Lynda Tyler's life featured plenty of hobbies, but politics wasn't among them. Today phone banks, polls and debates dominate Tyler's life. The Wichita resident has joined the Tea Party.

"We've tried to help the Republicans, but they don't want our help," she says.

"They sit in their castle and see us as a threat."

Tyler founded Kansans for Liberty, the Tea Party's chapter in Wichita because, she says, Republicans have abandoned their goals of personal responsibility, fiscal responsibility and smaller government.

Plenty feel the same way — a recent CBS poll says 22 per cent of Americans view the Tea Party favourably, up from nil when the movement started last January.

"They don't like how government grew under George W. Bush with the bailout of the banks and the auto industry," explains Karlyn Bowman, a public opinion expert at the American Enterprise Institute.

"And government kept expanding with Obama's health-care reform. One of these expansions wouldn't have made the Tea Party so popular, but together they have."

Tea Party candidates are running for the House of Representatives, the Senate, governorships and in local elections this November. They often run as Republicans, but the GOP itself isn't sure whether it should applaud this popular surge or fret about it.

Killing the 'witch'

'I dabbled into witchcraft. I never joined a coven,' Senate candidate said 10 years ago Clip hit the Internet days after she won the primary

Republican Delaware Senate candidate Christine O'Donnell said she regrets airing the campaign ad in which she declared "I'm not a witch."

In a TV interview broadcast Thursday, O'Donnell agreed that that the ad only brought fresh attention to the issue surrounding her past statements as a TV commentator.

"I don't know if I'll get in trouble for saying that, but our intention was to kill it, and that's not what happened," she said.

Her comments about witchcraft were made over a decade ago during a taping of comedian Bill Maher's Politically Incorrect TV show. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Slovak customs official says authorities have detained a Dutch national in possession of enough chemicals to produce up to one million ecstasy pills.

Miroslava Slemenska, a spokeswoman for Slovakia's Customs Administration, said on Thursday that the man was arrested Oct. 15 at Bratislava's international airport in possession of 200 kilograms of chemicals that can be used to produce the drug.

She said the chemicals were found in four barrels placed in the man's car and were enough to produce up to one million ecstasy pills.

Slemenska said customs officials delayed announcement of the arrest pending full investigation. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Judge says details are private

Deposition over purported sex tape not to be made public

A judge in the legal battle over a purported sex tape involving John Edwards demanded Thursday that any deposition of the two-time presidential candidate be kept private.

Judge Carl Fox said he didn't want the details of such testimony to be discussed or released publicly, warning attorneys for both sides that there could be repercussions if the material is talked about outside of the case.

"I won't hesitate to use the contempt authority of this court," Fox said.

Attorneys for former Edwards aide Andrew Young have tried to depose the former North Carolina senator for months. They want to question him about a sex tape that Young said involves Edwards.

Fox denied a request by Edwards attorney Jim Cooney to limit the scope of the questioning. Cooney also failed to persuade the judge to prohibit Young from having the chance to view the deposition.

Edwards' mistress Rielle Hunter is suing to reclaim the video, saying it was taken from her personal belongings. Young, who has said he helped keep Hunter in hiding during the 2008 presidential campaign, contends the tape was found amid trash that Hunter left behind in a home that he was renting.

Two HIV drugs do not mix: FDA

Mixology

- Patients with HIV generally cycle through combinations of medicines to control the virus, which attacks the immune system.
- The FDA approved Invirase in 1995 to lower HIV levels in the blood. It is often combined with Norvir to improve its effectiveness.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is warning HIV patients not to combine two widely used antiviral drugs because they can cause dangerous heart rhythms.

The agency says the combination of Roche's Invirase and Abbott Laboratories' Norvir can trigger irregular heartbeats, leading to fainting, lightheadedness and even death. The FDA is requiring the companies to add information about the risk to their drugs' warning labels and to distribute pamphlets to patients. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cree have the last word, 125 years later

Aboriginal historian says 'Siege of Fort Battleford' is inaccurate Parks Canada has agreed to change ads

The Cree have finally won the "siege" of Fort Battleford — 125 years after the battle was fought.

Parks Canada has agreed to stop using the word "siege" in its posters and programming to describe the sometimes violent, sometimes tragic events at the frontier community during the Northwest Rebellion.

An aboriginal historian had pointed out that while settlers gathered in the fort in fear, no attack ever came and there was no siege.

"We don't want to use any wordings that could give people the wrong idea," said Mark Calette, Parks Canada's supervisor of historic sites in southern Saskatchewan.

For years, Parks Canada has re-enacted the fort's role in the Northwest Rebellion and advertised the confrontation on posters and other material as the "Siege of Fort Battleford."

In the spring of 1885, the region of what eventually became Saskatchewan was in turmoil as Metis and some Cree led by Louis Riel fought what they saw as settlers encroaching on their lands.

By the end of March, whites had been killed at Duck Lake and Frog Lake and rumours were spreading like a prairie fire that the Cree from Chief Poundmaker's band were massing to join the revolt.

Terrified, hundreds of people from the town of Battleford poured into the North West Mounted Police fort.

Civilians were armed to add to the detachment of 25 Mounties and the fort's stockade was beefed up for the attack that settlers were sure was coming.

On March 30, the Cree did come. But no attack followed.

Poundmaker asked to meet with the Indian agent, but his request was denied.

For the next three weeks, 500 settlers and townspeople cowered inside the tiny fort while Cree roamed the town.

They looted and burned several homes and emptied the Hudson's Bay depot.

Occasional shots were fired. A policeman was killed.

But the fort was never attacked.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rewriting history

Parks Canada has asked the aboriginals for their side of the story so that it may be used in future programming.

- One of the West's first reporters, P.G. Laurie, filed regular dispatches from inside the stockade.
- Parks Canada has used that material to create 15 vignettes acted out to convey the settlers' isolation and fear.
- But Tyrone Tootoosis, a member of the Poundmaker band, finally objected to promotional ads that used the word 'siege.'

REPORT:

Feds to approve BHP deal

CTV News reports that Ottawa will approve the takeover of Potash Corp. of Saskatchewan by an Anglo-Australian company but the federal government will attach conditions to make the deal more palatable.

The television network says it has been told that the Conservative government is prepared to approve the $38.6-billion purchase of the world's largest potash producer, but only if BHP Billiton agrees to "most of Saskatchewan's demands." The company has already made numerous public commitments to the province, including that its global potash headquarters will be in Saskatchewan.

Toyota issues massive recall

More than 28,700 vehicles to be recalled in Canada

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE PHOTO

▶ Toyota is recalling more than one million of its models in the U.S. and Japan for brake fluid and fuel pump problems.

Toyota is recalling 1.53 million Lexus, Avalon and other models, mostly in the U.S. and Japan, for brake fluid and fuel pump problems, the latest in a string of quality lapses for the world's No. 1 automaker.

The Canadian division of the automaker said it will recall about 28,700 vehicles for repairs in Canada.

In the U.S., the call back will affect about 740,000 cars and 599,000 in Japan.

The models affected by the latest recall include the 2005 and 2006 Avalon, 2004 through 2006 non-hybrid Highlander and Lexus RX330, and 2006 Lexus GS300, IS250, and IS350 vehicles, the company said in a statement.

Over the past year, Toyota has recalled more than 10 million cars and trucks worldwide for a variety of problems, from faulty gas pedals and floor mats that can trap accelerators, to braking problems in its Prius hybrid. In August, Toyota recalled 1.33 million Corolla sedans and Matrix hatchbacks in the U.S. and Canada because their engines may stall.

The majority of vehicles this time around need to be fixed for a problem with the brake master cylinder which could lead to weaker braking power, said spokesman Paul Nolasco in Tokyo.

Some models in Japan and elsewhere — but not in North America — have an electrical problem with the fuel pump which could cause the engine to stall, he said.

No accidents have been reported from the two defects, he said.

Nolasco said the recall decision was made under Toyota's new quality control regime instituted over the last several months in response to criticism that the company was slow in dealing with the slew of safety problems earlier this year. THE CANADIAN PRESS

WHAT'S HIDING IN THE CURRENCY WAR

Other people's money

DAVID DESCÔTEAUX

Yesterday, I paid $2.99 US to download an episode of Entourage on iTunes. Over a year ago, my credit card bill would have shown a charge of $3.88. The Canadian dollar was worth less then. Today, my bill will be around $2.99. The loonie is almost in pair with the U.S. dollar.

When our currency appreciates compared with other currencies, we become richer. It's as if we all suddenly got raises.

Politicians, though, believe the opposite. Right now, the world's governments are launching a "currency war." They're printing tons of money in the hope that it will lose value relative to their neighbours' currencies. It's the most ridiculous war, where winning means shooting oneself in the foot.

Why? According to the media, governments want to help their exporters. When you sell in Canadian dollars and that dollar falls, your product becomes less expensive — and more attractive — for foreign buyers. This might be a plausible explanation for certain countries like China, whose economies are heavily dependent on exports. (Although several other countries, like Germany and Switzerland have demonstrated that it's possible to succeed on the international market even with a strong currency.)

"It's the most ridiculous war, where winning means shooting oneself in the foot."

But for several western countries, the real explanation is to be found elsewhere. In the United States for example, exports make up only 12 per cent of GDP. Why impoverish the population for so little? Here's a hint: If tomorrow morning the American government confiscated every dollar held by the entire population, it would still need $12 trillion more to repay all of its debts and honour its promises to future retirees, according to David Walker, the country's former comptroller general.

The U.S. government is carrying a gigantic debt that it will never reimburse. But why go under when it just needs to reduce the value of the American dollar by printing a ton of money — what the media refer to as "quantitative easing" — and a portion of its debt will disappear as if by magic!

When you reduce the value of what you owe, you reduce your debt.

This solution would also help Japan, the most indebted country on the planet. And Great Britain, which is getting bogged down in deficits.

Listening to our leaders, you'd think we could become richer by being poorer, by underselling the fruits of our labours.

And so we have a "currency war." But underneath this absurd rhetoric, another motive hides: Several governments will try, in the coming years, to go bankrupt on the sly.

David Descôteaux is a freelance economic journalist and an associate researcher at the Montreal Economic Institute (iedm.org)

5 MINUTES WITH: BAILEY VAEZ

Feeling the burnout of corporate culture, the former industrial engineer quit her job and started her own initiative to bring wellness into the workplace.

You left a very promising career at 24. What caused you to take such a risk?
You see an opportunity to make something better and you jump at it. So when I was working as an engineer I noticed an opportunity and that was to make the workplace healthier.

What are some of the things you do when you're brought in by a company?
I help people deal with these work-life balance issues and manage stress, whether it be through time management seminars, nutritional counselling or a variety of fitness classes from salsa to aerobics.

What are some of the unhealthy things people do at work?
I think the fact that most work cafeterias carry foods that are high in sodium, high in fat, and even things you may think are healthy for you, like a tuna sandwich, are full of mayo. Breakfast meetings: Danishes, muffins, scones. Snacks: Vending machines. All these are toxins you're putting in your body.

What are some of the risks involved in this unhealthy office lifestyle?
If you look at Heart & Stroke research that just came out, diseases that were considered aging diseases are becoming the norm for people in their 20s and 30s: Things such as high blood pressure, high cholesterol, diabetes. A lot of folks aren't getting enough physical activity, and thereby gaining more weight because of the unhealthy food that they're eating. It's a vicious cycle.

What are employers doing to improve employee wellbeing?
The first thing employers can do is recognize that health is so crucial to how their organization performs. Don't order crap that you don't want your employees to eat, because it's going to get them sick and they're going to be on drugs, and they're going to be taking off time for sick leave. Why keep them at a high stress level when you can give them flexible days, and you can give them the opportunity to go for a brisk walk on a nice day? Why not implement strategies to maintain as opposed to bashing health?

Swing fever spreading

Worth mentioning

UBC Swing Kids

THE CANADIAN PRESS/HO-UBC SWING KIDS

TORONTO. Swing is making a comeback and it's not just the infectious rhythm and foot-stomping moves drawing the crowds. The sense of community created by the dance is proving even more of a lure as a young set brings an old jig back into style.

The style of dance, and the face-time it offers in an increasingly digitalized world, is something that's appealing even to the high school crowd.

"It has that youthful exuberance to it," says Matt Lam, a 24-year-old physics graduate student, who is also president of the UBC Swing Kids. He says he's seen teens as young as 16 come out to events put on by his campus club.

Swing dancing actually refers to a group of dances that developed in the 1920s alongside the swing style of jazz. The dances range from the traditional foot-stamping Lindy Hop to the body-hugging Balboa.

With university swing clubs cropping up and social dances offered in most major cities, swing fever is catching. The rise of popular television dance shows is also helping to raise the profile of swing.

While swingers dance with a partner, they don't have to bring one. Most people show up alone but don't stay that way for long. THE CANADIAN PRESS

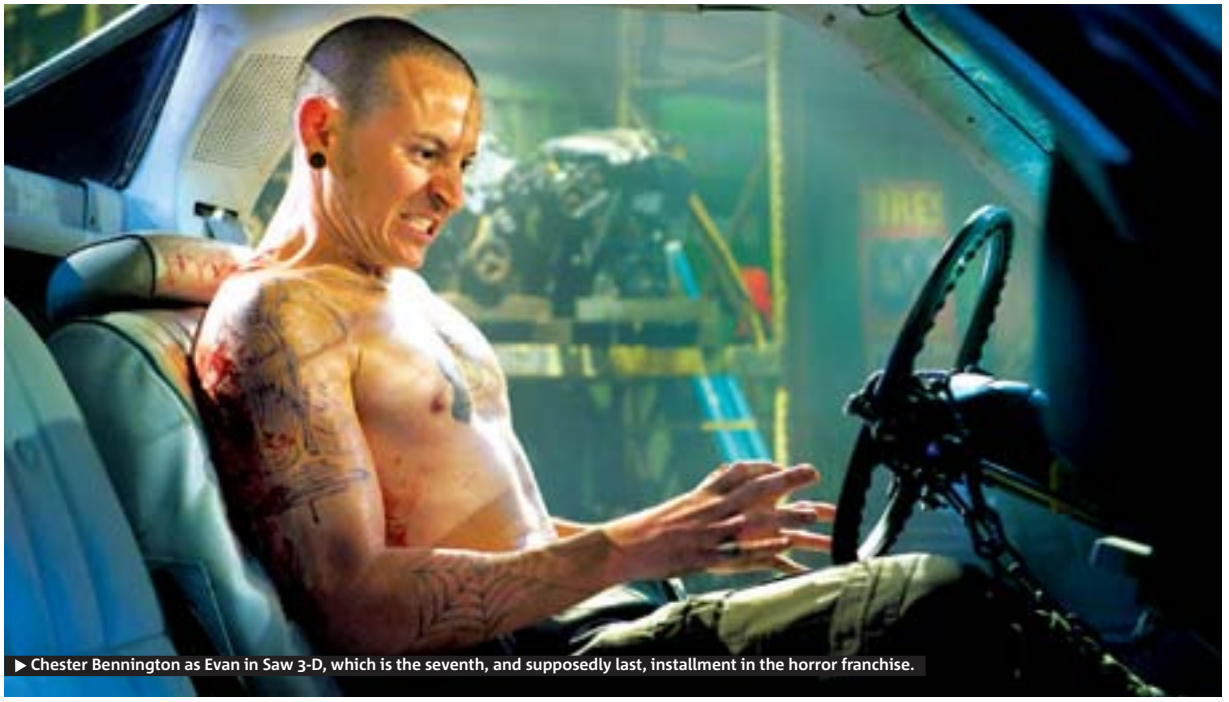
- Director and long-time editor of horror franchise brought back for seventh film
- Final Saw film looks to give fans one last look into the mad world of Jigsaw and his disciples



▶ Chester Bennington as Evan in Saw 3-D, which is the seventh, and supposedly last, installment in the horror franchise.

Saw sharpened for final cut

CHRIS ALEXANDER
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Last year, for the first time since the film series began, a Saw feature failed to own the box office on Halloween. Funnier still was that Saw 6 was one of the best entries in the series — a deft thriller whose ample gore was matched by slick directorial style and a witty, clever script.

Shame then, that the viral juggernaut Paranormal Activity trumped it on its opening weekend, sending director (and long time series editor) Kevin Greutert packing.

But when Greutert got the call from Paramount pictures to helm Paranormal Activity 2, Saw studio Lions Gate and production company Twisted Pictures sneered and used a contractual loophole to literally drag GreUtert back to film Saw 3-D, the seventh and supposedly final entry.

"This has been a hard year," says Gruetert who had to not only abort plans to make PA2 but also move back to Toronto from his native LA.

"But at the end of the day, I didn't want to let the fans down. I think we really made a film that continues the story but stands alone. I'm ultimately proud of this one."

Saw 3-D continues and climaxes the ongoing story of long dead anti-serial killer Jigsaw (Tobin Bell) whose disciples continue to use devious, flesh ripping death traps to teach sinners lessons that are often painful and fatal. And all of this mayhem literally jumps off the screen in digital 3-D.

"Needless to say there are plenty of 'comin at ya' moments," notes the talented filmmaker who aims for not only gore but psychological frissons in his work.

"There's also tons of blood. We have an obligation to the hardcore horror fans to do that. It looks pretty damn great in 3-D, I must say. After the sixth film, I certainly tried to top myself."

CanCon Creeper

Canada. Did you know that every Saw film — except the first — was shot in Toronto with many prominent Canadian actors and craftsmen called on to bring Jigsaw's gruesome, clockwork world to life?

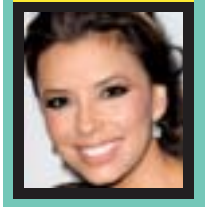
News in brief



Police say Desperate Housewives star Eva Longoria Parker has been involved in a minor traffic accident in Hollywood.

Los Angeles police Sgt. Kara Silverstein of the department's West Traffic Division says the actress was heading eastbound on Hollywood Boulevard at about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday when another driver made an unsafe left turn into a parking lot and hit Longoria Parker's car. Silverstein says the actress complained of pain but was not seriously hurt.

5 Top viral sensations

Once the Internet became common in North American households moviemakers started coming up with new ways to promote their films Unorthodox marketing techniques have helped launch unknown movies into the mainstream and boosted their box office revenues

We're digging deep in the vaults this week, going all the way back to 1999 to look at movies with viral buzz.

These are films that cultivated a mystique about them, an urgent, must-see aura, based on unorthodox marketing methods.

Maybe it's a creepy website. Maybe it's a few delicious details trickled out to a specific fan base. Maybe social media propels the buzz. Or maybe just a great title gets people talking.

With Paranormal Activity 2 opening this week, here are five movies that have benefited from that intangible but irresistible viral buzz.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARANORMAL ACTIVITY
2009

Sure, the phenomenon existed long before this horror movie came out last year, but this is a film that really capitalized on the power of Twitter and cheap online promotion, that rode a wave of excited, instantaneous word-of-mouth.

The movie itself had a pretty simple concept: It created the sensation that we were watching actual home video, shot in a bedroom overnight to capture whatever demon was haunting its young, female hero.

It only cost about $10,000 to make, opened in just a few theatres to generate even more curiosity, and went to gross nearly $108 million.

THE BLAIR WITCH PROJECT
1999

The mother of them all. Just saying the words "Blair Witch" serves as an instant shorthand: People know exactly what you mean.

The gimmick, in case you've forgotten, is that we were supposedly watching the real, final footage of a trio of friends who entered the woods to make a documentary about the legendary Blair Witch.

A debut at the Sundance Film Festival kicked off the talk. Unknown actors played the three characters, furthering the possibility this was all authentic. A website pushed the idea this was legitimate, adding to the eeriness. The movie made nearly $141 million.

CLOVERFIELD

Excitement for this thriller built in increments, but it was undeniable. The trailer, with its image of the Statue of Liberty's severed head bouncing down a Manhattan street, created huge buzz online and at Comic-Con.

The title gave away nothing — it's just the name of a street near producer J.J. Abrams' Los Angeles office, a code word the filmmakers used to keep the project under wraps — but it stuck. The premise was tailor-made for the YouTube generation: a monster attack on New York City as seen entirely from the perspective of a partygoer's handheld video camera.

AQUA TEEN HUNGER FORCE COLON MOVIE FILM FOR THEATERS
2007

Most people probably hadn't heard of the animated series Aqua Teen Hunger Force, which airs on Cartoon Network's late-night Adult Swim lineup. It follows the intentionally Dadaist adventures of a wad of hamburger meat, a milkshake and a container of fries who share a rundown New Jersey tract house.

The promotion included blinking, Lite-Brite-style renderings of alien characters, which in Boston were viewed as a potential terrorist threat. The movie made only about $5.5 million. But it got folks talking.

SNAKES ON A PLANE
2006

Snakes on a Plane (2006): It's exactly what you think: a thriller about snakes ... on a plane. Just the title alone promised a campy good time, a throwback to star-studded disaster action pictures like the 1970s Airport movies.

Adding to the fun, fans who saw the movie early urged the filmmakers to keep a crucial Samuel L. Jackson line in the script with a particularly colourful 12-letter word.

But people talked about the movie more than they actually went to see it. Snakes on a Plane opened at No. 1 with nearly $14 million but only went on to make $34 million.

▶ Gemma Arterton stars in Tamara Drewe.

Finding the right roles

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Since 1904 London's Royal Academy of Dramatic Art (RADA) has almost single handedly kept the British actor's union flush with members. John Gielgud, Anthony Hopkins and Kenneth Branagh are just a fraction of the school's famous alumni. More recently Gemma Arterton, star of this weekend's Tamara Drewe, studied there before becoming Britain's latest "It Girl."

"I left RADA three years ago and never expected I would have a film career," she says. "I always thought I would do theatre, and then it happened and I said, 'Yes, yes, yes' to every job without thinking about it.

"You are grateful that you're being considered and don't want to seem rude by turning them down. As a Brit we tend to think like that."

Among the roles Arterton said yes to are Quantum of Solace Bond girl Strawberry Fields and leads in green screen blockbusters Prince of Persia and Clash of the Titans. High profile for sure, but not exactly challenging for the recent graduate.

"This year I have been able to think about what I want," she says. "I've always just wanted to act and do things that are interesting and exciting. So now I have learned that the only power I have as an actress is the power of choice.

"I'm taking my time and reading scripts thoroughly. It doesn't matter if it is big or small, or whether I have a large part or a small part and that is serving me well."

In that vein she recently played the decidedly non-glamorous lead in Alice Creed and the manipulative Tamara Drewe, a successful columnist who stirs things up in her childhood village in rural Dorset.

"They are not particularly attractive roles in that Tamara Drewe is kind of a sex symbol but underneath it all she is an ugly character and isn't necessarily appealing or someone you'd want to be with," she says.

HOLLYWOOD'S AFTERLIFE

In Focus

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Clint Eastwood's latest film, Hereafter, concerns itself with what happens once you have, as John Cleese might say, "shuffled off this mortal coil." In the film a woman has a near death experience, beginning her walk into a bright light surrounded by misty figures making a similar journey into that great goodnight.

That's just the most recent cinematic vision of what happens after death, but there are many more, some played for laughs, sometimes for drama and now and then for comfort.

In Deconstructing Harry, Woody Allen goes for the joke, taking the viewer on an elevator ride through hell's nine floors, each reserved for a different kind of sinner. Best line? "Floor 7: the media. Sorry, that floor is all filled up."

Tim Burton also had some fun with the afterlife in Beetlejuice. Alec Baldwin and Geena Davis get tips on how to haunt their old house in a book titled Handbook for the Recently Deceased. Best line? "We're not completely helpless, Barbara," says Adam (Baldwin). "I've been reading that book and there's a word for people in our situation: ghosts."

Taking the hereafter a bit more seriously is The Rapture which sees Mimi Rogers almost reunited with her dearly departed daughter. This version of Heaven is much starker than the usual sweetness and light paradise seen on film; there's no Pearly Gates or fluffy clouds with angels snacking on Philadelphia Cream Cheese. For that version check out the opening minutes of the classic Rodgers and Hammerstein musical Carousel.

The story of a dead carnival worker who asks for permission to be sent back to earth for one day to make amends for mistakes he made in life starts with a glittering vision of heaven, complete with sparkling stars. Best heavenly quote? "Here there is no time; this is the beginning and the end."

What Dreams May Come, the 1998 film about a man who leaves heaven to search hell for his wife paints heaven as a place that, as Roger Ebert noted, seems "cheerfully assembled from the storage rooms of images we keep in our minds: Renaissance art, the pre-Raphaelites, greeting cards, angel kitsch."

The heaven in this film is a wonderful place "big enough for everyone to have their own private universe."

On the flipside is the movie's vision of hell as a surreal, dark place. Best quote: "Hell is for those who don't know they're dead."

Movie review See it twice | See it now | Worth watching | Yawn | Don't bother

Score misses the goal

Score: A Hockey Musical
Genre: Comedy/Musical
Director:
Michael McGowan
Stars: Olivia Newton-John, Noah Reid, Marc Jordan

We already have Wayne Gretzky Unoaked Chardonnay, which, according to the winery features soft "notes of white peach and pear" so do we really need a cinematic hockey tribute featuring some not-so-soft musical notes?

Director Michael McGowan thought so and the result is a parody of hockey violence set to a soundtrack that rhymes baloney with Zamboni. All that's missing is Don Cherry.

The story of a peace loving hockey prodigy's assimilation into the sport's violent world has its heart in the right place, but what could have been a surreal Glee-like experience unfortunately — to mix sports metaphors — doesn't hit a home run.

RICHARD CROUSE

Bringing history back to life

Carlos
Genre: Drama
Director: Olivier Assasys
Stars: Edgar Ramirez, Alexander Scheer, Nora von Waldstatten)

Easily the fleetest five-hour movie around, French director Olivier Assayas' globe-trotting biopic of the notorious terrorist Carlos the Jackal is highlighted by an hour-long depiction of a 1975 raid on OPEC headquarters in Vienna: it's action filmmaking to shame 99 per cent of Hollywood blockbusters.

The film lags in its final section (depicting Carlos' fall from prominence) but it's still a dazzling exercise in historical re-creation.

OPEN LETTER

October 22, 2010

From: UC Live Inc.

RE: The Poplife Champagne Ball concert headlined by NE-YO with special guests Melanie Fiona, Chrisette Michele and Shawn Desman, scheduled for the Air Canada Centre on Saturday October 23, 2010 at 8:00 PM

Dear valued ticketholders, media partners and corporate sponsors:

UC Live regrets to announce that the above-mentioned concert event has been cancelled.
This decision was formally announced to the media on Wednesday, October 19, 2010. And since that time, many ticketholders have written email to UC Live demanding to know why this happened. For this reason, I made the decision to take this unprecedented step to communicate some insight to the fans at large in this forum as to why the cancellation occurred. Although I am not able to provide all the documents and details in this forum at this time, I am hopeful that this letter will provide you with some answers in the interim, as well as a better understanding of the events that led to this disappointing outcome.

With that said, I can tell you that the cancellation is directly related to a lack of access to, and support from, specific radio stations based in Toronto to properly market the concert. This regrettable development prevented the event from reaching the "critical mass audience" that the stations in question serve. Reaching the right demographic is vital in consumer-driven industries, and this is even more so for music and live entertainment such as concerts. For example, marketing a rock concert on a gospel station or visa-versa would not serve the event. I can assure you that the marketing team at UC Live has in-depth knowledge of the right radio and media platforms that are most effective in the marketing of all our events. To that end, UC Live entered into negotiations behind the scene for weeks to reverse the unexpected denial and withdrawal of support for NE-YO and the Poplife Champagne Ball by two key Toronto radio stations that we expected and believed would eagerly promote and market our event, and this amazing and talented group of artists, to their listeners and the artists' large fan base.

Ultimately, our persistent negotiations with the radio stations accomplished limited results. One of the radio stations offered a winning weekend to promote tickets, an offer which we believe was scheduled too late to be effective; and the other key radio station offered a number of promotional elements that we felt would positively impact our event success, therefore we agreed to sign the agreement they offered. Within days of that agreement, the station began to frustrate implementation of the agreement and they eventually moved to unilaterally terminate the agreement by invoking new terms, by email correspondence, with the stipulation that UC Live must accept the revised terms within a mere two hour window or the agreement would be cancelled. As a result of the station's approach, we were left with no more access or means to reach the stations' audience and their vital audience demographic.

As a life-long concert fan, and as a producer of live events in Toronto and elsewhere for nearly twenty-three years, I am personally saddened by the extreme position and decisions made by executives at these radio stations and the immense negative impact their decisions have caused, directly and indirectly, to our ticketholders, artists, sponsors and our corporate investment and reputation. We at UC Live know first-hand how saddened our fans feel given their financial and emotional investment, and great anticipation of such an exciting event. But, be assured, fans you are not alone as our anticipation was equally high and the current financial damage to our company from the cancellation is currently in the hundreds of thousands of dollars and expected to rise. Let me assure you that this is a dark moment we share together, as UC Live fulfilled all financial obligations in advance relating to this event, including all artist contracts, and venue and marketing agreements we entered into.

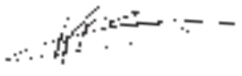
However, in the end, we were not able to mitigate the reality that without the promotional support from these primary radio stations, in harmony with the firm commitment of our other supporting stations, we could not play this event as scheduled in the setting of the ACC. It is with these facts and factors, and more, why we all will not get to see the amazing NE-YO, the soulful Melanie Fiona, the sensational Chrisette Michele and the Juno Award winning and platinum selling Shawn Desman, and more attractions that were planned, this Saturday.

Going forward, I ask all fans and our valued partners for your understanding and support. And keep an open mind that the truth will come out in due course. This is not the first or last time that individual disagreement will stand in the way of innovation, change or competition. Without taking sides, a few notable examples that come to mind include the mission to bring NHL to Hamilton, NTP vs. Blackberry, and recently, the new mobile industry entrants. In that context, we have come to realize that our challenge at the moment with the radio stations in question is very much in the same vein. I assure you that with your commitment to continue supporting our innovative branded events and our movement for change, we will prevail against those who have conspired to undermine UC Live.

Lastly, I would like to ask all fans and people of conscience to visit our website online to see what is new at UC Live and consider attending our amazing stage play starring Vivica A. Fox and Brian McKnight at Massey Hall Theatre on Tuesday, October 26, 2010 at 8:00 PM. Your support at this time will be immensely appreciated. The fact is, I care about our community and especially the arts and entertainment. That is the reason I chose to invest so much resources over many years to positively advance our culture and diversity on a world-class level. That was my mission when I began to produce events years ago and it will remain so in the years ahead. Please join my mission good people of Toronto.

Again, I sincerely apologize to our artists, valued ticketholders and the loyal sponsors for any and all inconveniences.

Sincerely,



KAB. Keith A. Baker

Brand and Perry to wed this weekend

Comedian and pop star to tie the knot near tiger sanctuary in India

Russell Brand and Katy Perry are getting married this weekend at a luxury resort outside the Ranthambhore tiger sanctuary in the Indian state of Rajasthan, a local tour operator said Thursday.

The British comedian and American pop star arrived Wednesday at Mumbai airport.

Their six-day celebration begins Saturday with a Hindu wedding ceremony conducted by a local priest at the Sher Bagh resort, said Rajasthan Tours manager Mohan Singh, whose company is one of several involved in organizing the event.

"This would be a colorful Rajasthan wedding, and both Brand and Perry would be attired in Indian wedding attires," Singh said.

The couple have hired 13 vehicles to take some of their 80 or so guests on tours of the wildlife sanctuary in the days after the wedding, Singh said.

The Ranthambore National Park, one of northern India's largest sanctuaries, is best known for it large tiger population — with 27 now — but is also home to leopards, wild boars, hyenas and sloth bears.

The sanctuary, about 80 miles (130 kilometres) southeast of the pink-painted city of Jaipur, also includes several lakes and a 10th-century fort.

Brand and Perry will be staying in a luxury tent at the Aman-i-Khas resort, just outside the sanctuary, with guests staying at the nearby Vanyavilas and Sher Bagh resorts, Singh said.

Cage calls for global fight against crime

Oscar-winning actor Nicolas Cage, the frequent star of gangster thrillers, called Thursday for a united fight against organized crime.

Cage, a United Nations Goodwill Ambassador for Global Justice, said the threat posed by criminal networks is too big for communities or states to confront on their own and that countries must work together to battle it.

"(Organized crime) feeds off instability, and also makes instability worse."
NICOLAS CAGE

"Organized crime is a deadly infection that preys on human beings," Cage told delegates at a conference aimed at boosting support for a U.N. convention to curb crime.

Cage warned that regions weakened by conflict, lawlessness and extreme poverty are especially susceptible to traffickers of illegal drugs, weapons and even humans.

Cage described being a U.N. goodwill ambassador as his "most challenging and meaningful role" yet.

"At some point I wanted to stop being an actor and start taking action," he said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willow Smith

Music
We told you a few months ago about Willow Smith — daughter of Will Smith and Jada Pinkett Smith — releasing an album. Well the video for the first single, Whip My Hair, dropped this week featuring the star progeny, well, whipping her hair. Surprisingly it's not too bad, and the nine-year-old may be the first mini-singer actually born this century. Check it out on youtube.com.

Project Runway

Internet
The toddlers at Babelgum are at it again, this time with a fun send up of Project Runway. Arts

The Creative Spirit Arts Festival
Oct. 21-23, Creative Spirit Arts Centre
Over 60 years later and with North America in the middle of an economic mess, Arthur Miller's award-winning Death of a Salesman is still frighteningly relevant. The difference now is that it's not progressive to question the American dream and the systems surrounding it; it's just good sense. Real-life couple Joseph Ziegler and Nancy Palk play Willy and Linda Loman in Soulpepper Theatre's presentation of this celebrated classic. Mon-Sat 7:30 p.m., Sat 1:30 p.m. $31.20-$75.33, $22 ages 21-30. 416-866-8666. soulpepper.ca.

Comedy

The Cho Dependent Tour, featuring Margaret Cho with John Roberts.
Oct.. 22, Massey Hall
Margaret Cho has been diversifying: she was recently kicked off the reality competition show Dancing with the Stars; acts on Drop Dead Diva and has started to release music. But, when Cho visits Toronto on Friday, it's for the dirty stand-up she's best known for. In fact, she may be even angrier than usual in light of recent events — you know, all the homophobic news teen suicides, Don't Ask, Don't Tell — that's been going on).

Oct. 22, Isabel Bader Theatre
A one-of-its-kind collaboration between U of T and The Design Exchange, The Ends of Design is a discussion on the beginnings and ends of art, craft and culture with Bruce Kuwabara (of KPMB Architects) and Bruce Mau. 6:30 p.m. Free. 93 Charles W. 416-978-3089. danielsdx.org.

Music

Phoenix
Oct. 22, Ricoh Coliseum, 100 Princes' Blvd.
Four albums into their career, Phoenix have traded dance-pop for indie-rock, with 2009's Wolfgang Amadeus Phoenix garnering Grammy wins and prime festival slots. Rounding out the bill are Tokyo Police Club to provide a splash of Canadiana, and noise-popsters Wavves, both of whom hope to imitate the headliners' success. $53.50-$59. 8 p.m.

Music

Oct. 22, Horseshoe Tavern, 370 Queen W.
Frank Turner has been touring extensively (almost every day this month, and most others) with his folk/punk solo act. No big deal, though: he still has an EP due out in December, he just recorded a cover for Centrepoint charity compilation 1969 Key to Change and he starts recording another album in January. With Eamon McGrath, The Cavaliers. $15. 10 p.m.

Learn how the show's dancers look so perfect

▶ Lynne Ryan in action.

For the past few weeks we've watched So You Think You Can Dance Canada's aspiring dancers leap, flip and sweat their way to the final four — all while looking perfect.

How do they keep themselves looking composed while performing their numbers? Metro asked SYTYCD Canada's makeup artist Lynne Ryan for her tips on the best way to get your makeup to stay on:

SKIN CARE
You always want to make sure that the skin is well hydrated and protected with a product with an SPF.

EXFOLIATE
Add some kind of exfoliation regime to the skin. This will greatly improve the skin's overall texture and [improve] makeup's lasting power.

PEEL
Use a gommage (non-chemical face peel), a peeling mask or a very fine scrub every second day depending on your skin type. This will help to remove dead skin and allow the makeup to sit evenly.

MOISTURIZE
Before applying any other products, add a lightweight moisturizer in the summer and heavier lotion for the winter months. If mixed with a small amount of primer, it will help lock in moisture.

FOUNDATION
Foundation is best applied with a brush instead of fingers as it will help make your product last longer and lets you get into hard to reach areas. A finishing powder ... helps set the foundation. ● METRO

Rihanna under Jay-Z umbrella

Grammy-winning pop singer Rihanna has parted ways with manager Marc Jordan and is now being managed by Jay-Z's Roc Nation Management.

Rihanna told The Associated Press in a statement Wednesday that she's "so excited to take this next step in my career."

The 22-year-old is also launching a new company called Rihanna Entertainment. She says it will "merge all of her businesses, including music, film, fragrance fashion and book ventures."

She plans to release her fifth CD, Loud, on Nov. 16.

Phoenix ready to rise again?

▶ Soft-pop sensation breezes into town this weekend ▶ No new music, yet, band confesses

CHRIS PIZZELLO/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Thomas Mars of Phoenix

Phoenix fans aren't alone in wondering how the French new-wave rockers will follow their breakthrough 2009 album Wolfgang Amadeus Phoenix.

The band has no idea what their next record will sound like, either.

"No, no, no, no, no — we have zero seconds of new music," guitarist Laurent Brancowitz said in a recent telephone interview from Paris.

"We have always worked this way. ... It's really the way we've always done it. When we write on tour, it's always very bad.

"You can believe it, trust me. But also, an album, for us, it has to reflect the very precise period of time in our lives."

Well, if that's the case, one might expect the new music the band eventually conjures up to be pretty upbeat.

After nearly a decade of recording, the quartet finally broke through with their most recent collection of nimble, super-svelte pop tunes.

"I think we'll try to make an even weirder album... and maybe it's going to be a big success."
PHOENIX GUITARIST LAURENT BRANCOWITZ

On the strength of a crackerjack performance on Saturday Night Live and the flawless singles 1901 and Lisztomania, Phoenix not only earned widespread critical acclaim - landing in the top 10 of year-end album lists from Time Magazine, Rolling Stone, Spin and Pitchfork - but also won a Grammy Award for best alternative album.

Now, Phoenix is in the last phase of a nearly 18-month victory lap, with a show tonight in Montreal and on Friday in Toronto following a performance at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Of course, that sort of success also breeds lofty expectations for the band's next move. But Brancowitz says the group doesn't feel slowed by the weight of external pressure.

"To tell you the truth, no," he said. "Because the last album we did, really, we thought it was a bizarre album that nobody would like. So I think we'll try to make an even weirder album, in our opinion, and maybe it's going to be a bigger success."

"Do you know what I mean? It's really when we thought that we made it the most personal and strange, bizarre record, that it reached the most people. So, for us, it's a good sign to do it this way."

"So it's no pressure. Well I mean, there's lots of pressure, but it's the pressure with ourselves."

Somalian-born K'naan says he's still tied to his country in heart, spirit and, most of all, in music

Breakout rapper K'naan, who is on tour promoting his latest album, Troubadour, talked in a recent interview about Somalia's influence on his work.

Is it ever overwhelming being the voice of Somalia?
It's only overwhelming when I pause to think about it. But subconsciously it's just something that must be done. I don't really have the time to be overwhelmed by something that must be done. ... (Though) sometimes I'd rather just make music and not really have to come to an entire people's defence.

Did you ever think about just rapping and perhaps downplaying your Somalian connection?
I didn't set out to represent anything, I set out to fix my own problems. By writing those things in a sense it became that I'm writing about Somalia, because there's no way to represent my life in an honest way without the conflicts in Somalia.

Do you feel that the world has forgotten about Somalia?
I understand why. I understand the silence why. The difference between early '90s and now is that Somalia broke America's heart in the '90s, that's literally what happened. After Somalia, it's the reason why America did not go in to mediate in Rwanda. The result is a million people died.

What are your hopes for Somalia?
Somalia's scenario is that it's not good left alone, and it's even worse intervened. That's the dilemma of Somalia, because we do not accept foreign intervention. ... It doesn't seem like we can fix our own problems either. That's the tragedy of Somalia.

How do you instil Somalia in your two young boys since you aren't living there?
It's kind of hard to do that. They learn important values from me and their mom (who is Somalian) ... which I think is culture. But I think to get the complete package, to get the complete feeling, they'd have to live in Somalia, and at some point I hope they can.

Sound Check

SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

When people ask what I do at ExploreMusic.com, my answer is "I listen to all the bad music so you don't have to." Every week, people from all over the world dozens of CDs, 7-inch singles, MP3s and links to MySpace, Band Camp, Facebook and SoundCloud, all hoping to be featured on the website and the national radio show. Here are a few recent standouts that I highly recommend.

Exit Calm/Exit Calm: Four men from Yorkshire who channel the early floaty, fuzzy sounds of the Verve with ease. Their self-titled debut already has a place on my year-end Top Ten list.

Delphic/Acolyte: I've been evangelizing about this Manchester band since last Christmas and finally, their debut record is finally available in North America. It's slinky and sophisticated indie-dance music with DNA stolen from both New Order and Coldplay.

Tamaryn/The Waves: This San Francisco duo is on a number of hipster radars. Hypnotic layers of guitar-pop that straddles the line between old 4AD recordings and modern shoegaze.

Deerhunter/Halcyon Digest: There were high expectations for Bradford Cox's Atlanta-based band—and they've met most of them with an album that took just two weeks to record. Halcyon Digest might just be the best American indie record of the year.

Hollerado/Record in a Bag: Four-piece indie outfit from Manotick near Ottawa who really seem to get it. Check out their one-take video for Americanarama on YouTube.

Maximum Balloon/Maximum Balloon: Electro indie-pop created by TV on the Radio's Dave Sitek that would have sounded too far out of place in 1984 as an opening act for either Prince or the Talking Heads. In fact, David Byrne is on the record.

Smoke Fairies/Through Low Light and Trees: English female duo that sings dark English blues-folk that sounds almost medieval at times. I can imagine them opening for Shakespeare at the Globe.

Questions arise over hospital visit

Aguilera got stitches just days before divorce Husband said she fell

Just days before she announced her split from husband Jordan Bratman, Christina Aguilera reportedly showed up at a hospital emergency room nursing a nasty mouth injury, according to Radar Online.

"Christina was bleeding from her mouth and had a bit of a busted lip," says a source who saw the couple at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

"Jordan told the nurses she had fallen down. Shortly after they arrived to Cedars, Christina's private surgeon arrived to put a few stitches in her lip." METRO

Lohans worried over court

Today is Lindsay Lohan's big day in court, and she could reportedly be headed back to jail for up to a year, according to Radar Online.

"The fact that (Judge Elden Fox) ordered Lindsay to appear, even though she is currently in rehab and not planning to fight the probation violation, has Lindsay's legal team very, very, concerned," a source says.

Lohan's camp is reportedly preparing for the worst.

"I think everyone close to her would like to see her go back to rehab, but there's an overwhelming feeling that something is going to happen to Lindsay if she doesn't go away for a long time, so they're reconciling with the fact that she could go to jail for a while," a source says. "People are scared." METRO

"The truth is that's it's not Beyonce that's pregnant. It's me," Tina joked with Ellen DeGeneres.

"I'm kidding y'all. I'm 56. No, no (the reports are) not true. Not right now. With all the rumors, by now I should have five or six grandchildren."

IT'S SO NICE TO SEE HIM GETTING OVER HIS GRIEF

Joe Jackson is reportedly looking to get between $10 million and $500 million in compensation from the wrongful death suit against Conrad Murray, the doctor for his late son, Michael Jackson, according to TMZ.

Joe believes the amount is in "the realistic range of provable damages," according to sources.

"Joe says 20 per cent of his damages are for loss of support, 40 per cent are for emotional distress and 40 per cent are for 'loss of comfort, aid, society and companionship,'" a source tells the website. METRO

Victoria Beckham has come under criticism from PETA for using crocodile and lizard skin and calf leather in her new line of handbags, but the fashionista isn't taking the criticism lying down.

"Everyone is entitled to personal opinion and choice, but as with all Victoria Beckham products, the handbags are made to the highest quality and design," a rep for her line says, according to Hollyscoop.

The alluring aroma of the food business

Dedication? Check. Sound business plan? Check. With some effort and some luck your upstart catering biz can flourish

JOAN CHANG
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

It's been thirty years since Vancouver catering company The Lazy Gourmet started. People would bring in their own dishes, they'd get filled with food and you'd pass it off as your own. Since then the Lazy Gourmet team has done it all, even cooked for members of the British government during the Olympic Games.

They're the exception. According to David Martin, 50 per cent of new food ventures fail within the first year. Martin is the director of the Ted Rogers School of Hospitality and Tourism Management at Ryerson University in Toronto and he knows this all too well.

In Toronto:

We Cater To You, wecatertoyou.ca: Cindy and Kevin MacDougall run this growing corporate and event catering company alongside their restaurant operation, Merci Mon Ami, in Liberty Village. Cindy's passion for food and Kevin's brain for business make them a perfect catering couple. Cindy's advice for aspiring caterers: "The truth is, it takes a lot of hard work. You have to be completely married to it. I would tell them 100 per cent this will take 100 per cent of your time."

"There's a mystique about it, a lot of people think it's great, they love people and they love to cook. People come to us for advice and the first thing I say is, 'Do you have a business plan? How are you going to get your customers?' Few think about that."

Martin says there are certain elements that prospective caterers must consider before taking the plunge.

"'What do you want it to become? Work with that and say, 'what are the milestones to success? What's my strength and what are the opportunities in the marketplace?' If you take a look at the total package, you need to identify what you need to overcome and figure out what you need to do overcome that."

You'll learn a lot speaking to the caterers themselves. Brenda Dutton has been running Absolutely Edibles in Edmonton for 11 years. She's stuck to her philosophy of hard work and quality control. "We only take so many event per day and we turn down business because being greedy, you compromise your values, you stop paying attention to what's going out the door."

General manager of The Lazy Gourmet Kevin Mazzone says ultimately it's about the reputation you build for yourself. "The food business is very difficult. Really having that trust in our name … people just keep coming back."

▶ There is a 'mystique' about the food industry, it's something many people aspire to. But it's not easy. It takes skill, dedication and a bit of luck to succeed.

Chili pepper jelly great for entertaining

This recipe for spicy-sweet chili pepper jelly is easy and versatile. Pam Corbin, author of The River Cottage Preserves Handbook, suggests using whichever variety of chili you prefer — hot, fruity habeneros; rich, mild poblanos; or searing hot jalapenos.

Chili Pepper Freezer Jelly

Preparation:

1. In a large saucepan over medium, combine bell peppers, jalapenos, ginger and vinegar. Bring to a simmer, then add sugar, lime juice and salt. Cook, stirring, until mixture reaches a boil. Boil for 4 to 6 minutes, then remove from heat and let cool for 5 minutes.
2. Sprinkle fruit pectin over jam and stir in. Divide jam among freezer-safe jars with lids. Tightly seal jars, then let cool for 30 minutes.

Potlucks for Halloween great for the kids

Here are some tips to help you plan a successful and enjoyable children's Halloween party:

- Share the expense and stress of hosting a party with friends and family. A progressive or potluck party distributes the work and expense evenly among all.
- Since Halloween is on a Sunday this year, plan a party on the eve of the big night.
- Bake homemade treats in lieu of store-bought Halloween cupcakes, cookies and cakes.

Wine tastings take flight at the airport

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICES

▶ At Kelowna International Airport, Toronto-bound passengers may get to sample B.C. wines they cannot find in Ontario.

For a wine lover stuck at an airport, a glass of chilled Chardonnay or mellow Merlot could be just the ticket to help pass the time.

At Kelowna International Airport, that might happen at 9 or 10 a.m., when local wineries occasionally offer tastings in the departures area at the Okanagan Estate Wine Cellar. It's a time when the terminal is often busy with Toronto-bound flights — and when the wine may taste especially bracing to passengers who have just finished their breakfast.

"Because it's in the morning a lot of people say 'It's too early for me,'" says store salesperson Rosie Drummond, adding that the tastings are popular nonetheless.

The Wine Cellar outlet sells only B.C. wines, almost all from the Okanagan Valley, which extends north and south from Kelowna. Some of the offerings are hard — if not impossible — to buy in other parts of the country.

"A lot of the Ontario customers say 'We can't get this in Ontario,'" says Drummond.

Anyone flying within Canada is allowed to bring as carry-on up to 12 bottles purchased at the store if they have no other carry-on baggage, or six bottles along with one carry-on item.

The Airports Wine Guide is compiled by Cheapflights.ca (cheapflights.ca/promos/airport-wine-guide). It focuses mainly on a handful of airports in grape-growing provinces, as well as a few border U.S. airports.

At Vancouver International Airport, the Koho Restaurant & Bar and Koho Express Bar are the places to go for B.C. wines from producers including Sandhill, See Ya Later Ranch and Red Rooster. There are also plenty of domestic wines for sale at the airport's West Coast Liquor Store.

Victoria International Airport's White Spot Restaurant offers wines from B.C. producers including Sumac Ridge, Ganton & Larsen Prospect Winery and Nk'Mip Cellars. Once past the security check, you can also try vino from Mission Hill and others at the Airside Lounge.

Passengers at Toronto Pearson International Airport can find Niagara Peninsula wines such as Inniskillin, Jackson-Triggs and Mike Weir Estate at various bars and restaurants.

Bautista goes under the knife

Blue Jays slugger has sports hernia surgery Needs about a month to heal

Opposing pitchers can take some solace knowing that even a sports hernia couldn't slow down major-league home run leader Jose Bautista this season.

The Toronto Blue Jays slugger underwent surgery to repair a sports hernia in Philadelphia on Thursday, a procedure that "was done without complication" and will need about a month to heal.

The 30-year-old, who ripped a franchise record 54 homers in 2010, first began experiencing soreness in his lower abdomen in May.

An examination revealed the injury — a weakening of the muscles or tendons of the lower abdominal wall — and team trainers and doctors decided he could keep playing without inflicting more damage.

As things turned out, damage was inflicted on opposing pitchers, as Bautista finished the season with 124 RBIs, 109 runs and 100 walks to go with all the home runs in his first all-star campaign.

He also stole nine bases while providing elite defence in right field and third base.

"If we felt he wouldn't have been able to run full speed, or do the things he wanted to, or all those types of things, we wouldn't have allowed him to play," general manager Alex Anthopoulos said in an interview.

161
Jose Bautista played in a career-high 161 games during the season.

"He had it, but it really did not impact him at all."

The injury is believed to have come from wear and tear rather than a specific incident, although it's difficult to identify a specific cause. While a team release said he "tolerated the discomfort" until the season's end, Anthopoulos said if the pain had been bad, they would have done the surgery right away.

"Jose didn't even need to take days off," he said. "If he had pain, at that point we had four, five months left in the year, we would have taken the three-to-four weeks to shut him down and get him fixed and get him back."

Bautista obliterated his previous career-high of 16 homers during one of the best offensive seasons in Blue Jays history.

Anthopoulos said his player — who made $2.4 million US last year and is due a big raise in arbitration — is welcome to play winter ball in his native Dominican Republic, but doesn't expect him to.

Chris Bosh has left Toronto but the Raptors are still using their former all-star forward to sell tickets.

The team is promoting 11-game ticket packages that include a choice of the Miami Heat's two trips to Toronto — Feb. 16 and April 13.

The ad campaign gives the impression of a showdown between the Heat and Raptors.

In the ad, the Heat are represented by a star-studded threesome of Bosh, LeBron James and Dwyane Wade. The three Raptors are far-from-fierce-looking youngsters DeMar DeRozan and Sonny Weems and the underachieving Andrea Bargnani.

Bosh was the face of the Toronto franchise before joining the Miami Heat this past summer after seven seasons.

Pickups that Paid off

▶ Cody Ross of the San Francisco Giants hits a home run against the Philadelphia Phillies during Game 1 of the NLCS on Saturday.

Bengie Molina hits a go-ahead homer to put Texas in charge of the AL championship series.

Cody Ross comes through with another clutch hit for the Giants.

Kerry Wood sets up a Yankees save.

Everywhere you turn in these playoffs, late pickups and mid-season acquisitions are playing important roles on the field.

And there's more to it than just Cliff Lee and Roy Oswalt, the star pitchers who were traded with such fanfare in July.

"You like to think on paper in spring training you've got what it takes and there's not many changes," said former Atlanta ace John Smoltz, now broadcasting games on TBS. "But history will show there's always something you can do and certain moves you can make that will help you get to the next level."

Take a look at the final four teams in this postseason. Each of them made at least one notable addition this summer, and many of those players have grabbed the spotlight this fall.

Besides landing Lee, the October ace who came over from last-place Seattle, the Rangers obtained Molina, Jorge Cantu and Jeff Francoeur between July 1 and Aug. 31. All that despite economic constraints and the comfortable cushion Texas had opened in the AL West.

"We are not expecting those guys to come in here and put us on their shoulder. We just expect them to come in here and fit in and be the baseball players that they are," manager Ron Washington said this week. "They fit in perfectly."

Cantu hasn't hit much, but the strong-armed Francoeur starts in right field against left-handed pitching and brings a positive influence to the clubhouse, Washington said.

Molina, slow-footed but steady, filled a hole at catcher when Texas shipped reliever Chris Ray and a minor leaguer to San Francisco. Molina arrived with plenty of postseason experience from his days with the Angels, and is batting a team-best .385 with two homers and seven RBIs in the playoffs. His three-run homer off A.J. Burnett on Tuesday gave Texas a 3-1 series lead.

After losing Wednesday, the Rangers headed home still needing one win for the first World Series berth in the franchise's 50-season history.

"I'm so thankful for the organization to take the time to go out and get a guy like that, because he has tightened things down quite a bit and it's mainly because of his experience," Washington said. "He's been there, he's done that."

Ravin' about Ross

Cody Ross' bat is certainly winning hearts in San Francisco during these playoffs.

- Picked up Aug. 22 on a waiver claim from Florida, Ross had a .433 on-base percentage with four home runs and seven RBIs through eight playoff games.
- He has provided much-needed pop in a flawed lineup, spurring the Giants toward an NL pennant, which is not bad for a guy who grew up in New Mexico dreaming of becoming a rodeo clown.
- "It's just been an unbelievable experience for me so far," Ross said. "The Giants were awesome to bring me over here and it's just been a great ride."

JET LAG & SPORTS CULTURE SHOCK

The bizarre odyssey to India and the Commonwealth Games of New Delhi are over by a week — everyone is safely home or onto the next gig.

Herein lies the culture shock that sport has come to embody. Instead of marvelling at hordes of athletes of all shapes and sizes obsessed with performing in adverse conditions and with pride on the line, the focus has turned to a few petulant professionals who dominate our attention because of the complaining they do and the cheating they engage in.

What's up with Wayne Rooney? Since when does a player hold a great club like Manchester United for ransom because it won't buy the most expensive stars in the galaxy of international soccer? Rooney won't play because he doesn't get all the new toys for his sandbox. It reeks of the spoiled child who pouts in the corner when there aren't enough presents under the Christmas tree.

Is that what sport has become? You can't have a winner unless you buy it?

HAMISH BLAIR/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Wayne Rooney

Maybe Rooney should get on with the task of pulling up his socks and earning the millions he's paid in order to make Manchester United a champion again. Perhaps he should lead by example and employ his enormous gifts that make him one of the world's best footballers in order to make an actual difference on the field of play.

Why do NFL players complain because they can't be headhunters anymore?

A Pittsburgh Steelers linebacker is whining because the league fined him for trying to rip someone's head off. James Harrison, a highly decorated player, is threatening to retire because the NFL is attempting to change the culture of cheating. He says he can't be as effective and aggressive without going after helmets.

Who is he kidding?

The Rugby Sevens were ferocious in India. There was full speed, open field, tackling that was both spectacular and thrilling. The New Zealanders, all clad in menacing black, were plenty aggressive as they demolished their opponents without the benefit of padding.

And oh yeah, they never went for the head ... never.

Maybe it's simply a case of reverse culture shock, but modern professional sport has a different hue when you look at it through jet-lagged eyes.

It seems like it's less about what happens on the field of play than off it.

On the Wayne: Man U moves on

Storied club looks to prove it's still a powerhouse, even as top player looks to leave them behind

As Wayne Rooney plots a route out of Manchester United, the rest of the squad will want to prove they can cope without the disgruntled striker and have the quality to regain the Premier League trophy.

The 18-time champion go to Stoke on Sunday for its first league game since Rooney went public with his desire to leave.

The team is also trying to end a streak of three straight league draws, having fallen five points behind leader Chelsea.

Rooney told chief executive David Gill last week that he wanted to leave the club he joined in 2004 after failing to get assurances it would spend heavily on top-class players in future transfer windows.

But even with Rooney looking likely to leave, manager Sir Alex Ferguson has been quick to reassure the other players — and fans — that the future is bright at Old Trafford.

"The structure of the club is good — we have the right staff, the right manager, a brilliant chief executive," Ferguson said.

"There is not a thing wrong with Manchester United ... we still have that fantastic romance, and respect from everyone."

With Rooney already sidelined with an injury, United secured a 1-0 victory over Turkish champion Bursaspor on Wednesday to stay top of its Champions League group.

The goal came from Nani — one of the players Ferguson has been nurturing since signing the 23-year-old winger three years ago.

The manager stressed that his policy has long been to buy young talent and then develop them in the club, rather than spend heavily on players who have already become stars.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

G'day Rooney?

- It might be tongue-in-cheek, but one former England football star says he's trying to talk Wayne Rooney into coming to Australia.
- Robbie Fowler, a former England striker and Liverpool star during the height of his career, said Thursday he spoke to Manchester United forward Rooney about joining the A-League's Perth Glory during a recent two-week holiday in Britain.

Players' pay must take a cut: Stern

Salaries must drop by as much as $800 million, NBA commissioner says ● League says teams have projected losses of $340-to-$350 million

NBA commissioner David Stern said Thursday there was no quantifiable progress in collective bargaining talks over the summer and the league revealed it is seeking a reduction in player salary costs by about one-third.

Stern said the league wants player costs to drop by $750-to-$800 million US. Deputy commissioner Adam Silver said the NBA currently spends about $2.1 billion annually in player salaries and benefits.

"There's an increasing understanding on both sides of what the risk of not making a deal entails."
DAVID STERN

"We would like to get profitable, have a return on investment," Stern said. "There's a swing of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $750-to-$800 million that we would like to change.

"That's our story and we're sticking with it."

Stern and Silver spoke after completing two days of meetings with league owners, who are seeking major changes to the current CBA that expires June 30. Silver said the league has told the union that owners are in a "diseconomic situation," with projected losses of about $340-to-$350 million this season.

Harrison not ready to retire

Steelers linebacker returns to practice after threatening to quit over NFL's crackdown on dangerous hits

That retirement talk by James Harrison didn't last nearly long enough for some NFL quarterbacks.

The three-time Pro Bowl linebacker resumed practising Thursday with the Pittsburgh Steelers, one day after threatening to retire because of the NFL's stricter enforcement of dangerous hits.

Harrison was fined $75,0000 US on Tuesday for a helmet hit on Cleveland Browns receiver Mohamed Massaquoi, making him one of three NFL players fined at least $50,000 for flagrant hits last weekend. On Wednesday, NFL commissioner Roger Goodell followed up the fines by releasing a memo emphasizing significant penalties will be imposed upon players who strike an opponent in the head or neck in violation of existing rules.

Harrison, arguing the restrictions won't allow him to play football as he's always played it, met with coach Mike Tomlin on Wednesday to discuss the changes. Tomlin decided to give Harrison a cooling-off day and sent him home from practice.

Harrison's teammates didn't take his threat to retire seriously, saying he enjoys playing too much to quit during the second season of a $51.2-million contract. Harrison agreed with that in a statement issued by the team.

"I have come to the decision that I cannot and will not let the league office stop me from playing the game that I love," Harrison said.

Harrison did not talk to reporters before or after practice. The team said the statement would be his only comments.

"I will continue to play the game with the same passion, intensity and focus with which I have always played and let the chips fall where they may," Harrison said. "I have never give up, quit or walked away from anything in my life and I am not about to start now."

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 You are under no obligation to work your fingers to the bone just to please other people. They may have got themselves in a bit of a mess but that's not your fault.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Your confidence may be high right now but the moment you start to believe that nothing can possibly go wrong is the moment when it most likely will.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 The more you want something to happen the more likely it is you will overreach yourself and make the kind of mistake that you usually go out of your way to avoid. Don't be too eager today. Let life come to you.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Even if you are the kind of Cancerian who rarely strays far from home you will be on the move today. Where you go remains to be seen but make sure that you, and you alone, set the travel agenda.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 It's not like you to avoid reality but it seems you want nothing more at the moment than to lose yourself in daydreams. And why not?

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Someone seems to have got it into their head that you will grant any favor they ask of you. It would be nice if you were in a position to do so but you're not and you need to avail them of that fact quickly.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Resist the urge to rush things, especially on the work front where you won't do your reputation much good if you cut corners and make mistakes as a consequence.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Mars, planet of ego, squares up to Neptune, planet of deceit, today, so it might be wise to check, then double check, everything you are told.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Be wary of those who try to confuse you by introducing irrelevant facts and figures into your conversation. The situation you are currently involved in is quite simple really. Stay focused on the central point so they can't cheat.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 This is a good day for talking with friends and learning from their experiences, but don't immediately rush out and try to do what they have done.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 By all means enjoy yourself but stay within your limits too. The planets warn you could get carried away and do something that invites trouble into your life.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 With Mars squaring up to your ruler Neptune today there is a danger you could be a bit too optimistic for your own good. Confidence is a good thing, of course, but too much of it can cause problems. Steer clear of extremes. SALLY BROMPTON
